LET US SUFFICE

There is Another
CLOTHING STORE
That Sells Good Clothing

If all the clothing in this world was made in one place and sold by only one firm—you would wear just what that particular firm chose to sell you. But there are many of us in the business and we think we are just as able to supply the proper article at the proper price as any one else.

MARION'S BEAUTY SHOW

Bright-Eyed Silken-Haired, Red-Cheek School Ma'ams

Take the City By Storm but Bring Cerulean Skies and All Pervading Sunshine

At the court house this morning the local teachers' institute season in Marion county opened, with one of the best-attended institutes ever held in Marion county, and great interest was manifested in the proceedings. The character and standing of the principal speakers were such as to give the impression of a state meeting of educators, rather than that of a local institute, and the results will prove to be most satisfactory, for the effect on the Marion county teachers in attendance cannot help but be very beneficial and helpful. The attendance was good, and the lectures delivered fell on fruitful ground.

Prof. H. S. Lyman, superintendent of the Clatsop county schools, who has charge of securing the educational exhibit from Oregon for the Louisiana Purchase Exposition, addressed the teachers on the matter in which he is most vitally interested, and urged the assistance of the teachers in making this exhibit the very best possible. He received the warmest encouragement in his efforts to make the Oregon exhibit a creditable one. Professors Ackerman and Clarke also offered suggestions as to the exhibit, and the best manner of giving aid to the committee having it in charge.

A class exercise by pupils of the Salem public schools was one of the attractions. The exercise was by a primary class, composed of pupils from the rooms of Mrs. Dodd, Miss Ketchum, Miss Cosper and Mrs. Ogle, and Miss Ketchum had charge of the work.

Prof. Adrian, the Wisconsin educator and lecturer, addressed the institute on "New Ideas," and suggested in the schools, the teaching of the work and attainments of such men as Bell, Edison and Dr. Morton, and their efforts in the interest of humanity, be given the preference over the old idea of the emphasizing the piddling warfare heroes.

At the afternoon session Professor Ackerman delivered a lecture on "Recitation," and was followed by a class exercise by pupils of the Salem schools, in charge of Miss Mellen, President Ressler, of the Monmouth Normal School is on the program this afternoon for a lecture on the Educational Association, and Prof. Adrian will deliver his famous lecture on "A New History." This will conclude the institute work for the day, and this evening Prof. Adrian will deliver his lecture, "A Day in Congress in War Time," at the First M. E. church.

Another Thompson Play.

"The Two Sisters" by Denman Thompson is easily first and foremost among American plays that deal with real life and character, with the real people and incidents one is sure to meet with in rural and metropolitan life. It is spoken of as a companion piece to "The Old Homestead" and this is regarded by many people as the highest kind of praise on account of the great affection we all have for dear old Denman Thompson, but it has more action and character and does not confine the auditor to intense admiration of one role to the possible detriment of a general effect. "The Two Sisters" is a play for every single individual in the cast, their prominence is greatly a matter of their personal ability, they can all be stars if they make good. The auditor gets the best of this in every way and the general result is a performance of absolute perfection. As Rudyard Kipling has treated every day life in India and Africa so has the distinguished author of "The Two Sisters" treated his favorite play—it tells the life story of the real people we know and meet every day. We rejoice in their triumphs, weep at their sorrows and laugh at their absurdities. It's the real thing and exactly what the intelligent up-to-date theater goer wants.

"The Two Sisters" is announced for this city Tuesday night at the Grand Opera House. Seats on sale at box office Tuesday at 9 a. m. Curtain at 8:15.

A New Switchboard.

H. M. Friendly, expert mechanic with the telephone company, came up from Portland last evening, and will supervise the improvements in the local exchange. A new switchboard is to be added, to relieve the local system, and this will be followed by the installation of an improved system of switchboards and instruments. The business of the local exchange has been growing rapidly, and improvements in the fixtures were needed in order to keep pace with the requirements.

Bark Went to Pieces.

Not a vestige of the Italian bark Cavour remains on the spit where it was stranded. Twenty-four hours after it struck, the vessel, together with the cargo, had washed away, so it is doubtful if any one who visits the wreck today will be able to carry away even a souvenir of the disaster. Captain Loffinas was busy yesterday cabling to its owners, and will receive instructions what course to pursue.—Astorian.

White Rotary Sewing Machines

The most thorough up-to-date machine on the market.

Reasons why?
First, its rotary shuttle.
Then the shuttle is instantly removable.
Others are not.
It has tension indicators.
Others have not.
It has automatic tension release.
Others have not.
It has ball bearings.
It has triple feed.
It sews a fourth faster than the vibrating shuttles. It runs lighter, runs easier, and the automatic head lift is of the cable in place of rawhide, hence does not stretch and leave the head sag.
It is a machine that you would thoroughly appreciate, if you would take the time to see it.
Call in any time. We have special sewing machine salesroom, and an experienced man in charge. Mr. N. H. Burley, who will show you every courtesy.

Besides
We rent new sewing machines. We repair all sorts of machines, and guarantee our work.
We sell best needles and oil for all machines.
And we take your old machine in exchange on new ones, and allow you what it is worth.
We have a number of second-hand machines, all in fine working order, for sale at a bargain.
Ask to see them.
